CIRCUIT TRAINING - is a program in which you move immediately from an exercise for one muscle group to an exercise for a different muscle group until all major muscle groups have been worked. The circuit of activities can include weights, callisthenic exercises, exercise tubing, and cardiorespiratory equipment. Moving immediately from one activity to the next allows you to work the cardiorespiratory system as well as the muscular system.

VINYASA YOGA - Invigorating and challenging, these classes offer a complete journey for the body and mind. You will practice both classical and creatively-adapted sun salutations, standing and seated postures, balance-poses, backbends, and inversions alongside meditation, yogic breathing, and more. Movements are fluid and there is a focus of correct alignment, which creates stability and ease within each posture while honoring the wisdom of the body to lead the way. Open to students with a solid foundation of sun salutations and basic standing postures as well as comfort in backbends and inversions!

YOGA/PILATES/FUSION - This introductory Yoga/Pilates/Fusion class combines the core strength training and coordination of Pilates with the flexible strength and meditative elements of Yoga. Both practices involve specific postures, correct breathing, balance work and body awareness. With the perfect supplement of Pilates rings, this unique format creates a strong, toned and well balanced body. This All Levels format encourages practitioners to work at their own pace.

STRONG FLOW YOGA - does this with integrative exercise. Yoga asks all your muscles to work together. We will hold poses that ask our legs to work, our core to engage, your arms to work and we have to breath, concentrate and feel all at the same time, which is very different from anything else we do in the gym. In the gym, we isolate one muscle or one group of muscles at time. In Yoga, we do not work a muscle group to failure, like in strength training. Instead, we choose an approach that can not only build strength and at the same time, increase range of motion around a joint (flexibility), increase focus, work on concentration, balance, coordination, reduce stress, and so much more. What makes Yoga different is that we always focus on the breath. The combination of all these benefits is why Yoga is called a Mind/Body exercise. Don't be fooled by the new age sound of this class. It is still exercise and you should be prepared to work.

HAPPY HOUR YOGA - Fun and friendly class to help "demystify" yoga. Designed to enhance vitality and a sense of well being.
